Recommendations

Recommendations play a key role in your application by providing reviewers with an outside perspective on your aptitude, attitude, and achievements. It's important to choose someone who can serve as a strong and positive reference. Ideally, this should be someone familiar with your accomplishments, academic performance, and future goals, such as a teacher, counselor, mentor, or supervisor from a job or internship.

To submit a recommendation, you'll need the recommender's email address for the application platform. Be sure to reach out to them well in advance to ask if they can serve as your reference. Also inform them that their recommendation must be submitted to the application platform by the application deadline.

Tips for Success:

- Choose individuals who can speak to your strengths and achievements
- Provide them with details about the scholarship, your goals and any key points you would like them to emphasize
- Request letters well in advance of the deadline; allow at least 2-3 weeks
